

NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

---

Zdravka Evtimova's short story collection Bitter Sky was published in 2003 in the UK by Skrev Press. This short story collection was reprinted by Route Press, UK in April 2005. Her short story collection Somebody Else was published by MAG Press, USA, in 2004. Her novel God of Traitors was published in January 2007 by Books for a Buck Publishers, Dallas, Texas, U.S.A.

Sam Greene has recently moved to Ottawa, lured by the promise of a new, blossoming prose community. Part One of his story "Windows" was published in the Winter 2007 issue of The Puritan. It will be concluded in the Summer 2007 issue. He has recently had a falling out with his Boston Terrier, Don Juan, and is seeking a new animal companion.

Jeffrey Griffiths lives in Hamilton Ontario with his wife and two lovely kids. His short fiction has appeared in Front and Centre, The Nashwaak Review, Hammered Out, Saucyvox, Litbits, and Nuvein.

Steve Mayoff lives on Prince Edward Island. His work has appeared in various Canadian magazines such as the Windsor Review, Grain, Filling Station, Parchment, All Rights Reserved, Grimm Magazine and the Malahat Review, as well as Terrain.org (USA), the Dublin Quarterly (Ireland) and the Arabesques Review (Algeria).

Clay McCann: featured discount; contents: filler.

Scott McIntyre lives in Toronto with his wife, daughter and two dogs. He has been published both online and in print and volunteers as a co-editor at Descant.

rob mclennan lives in Ottawa, even though he was born there. The author of fourteen trade poetry collections including The Ottawa City Project (Ottawa ON: Chaudiere Books, 2007) and a compact of words (Ireland: Salmon Publishing, 2007). He has three more books due out in 2007, including the non-fiction books Ottawa: The Unknown City (Vancouver BC: Arsenal Pulp Press) and subverting the lyric: essays (Toronto ON ECW Press), as well as the novel White (Toronto ON: The Mercury Press). He often posts reviews, essays and rants at www.robmclennan.blogspot.com, and was recently named writer-in-residence at the University of Alberta for the 2007-8 academic year.

Britt Piper was born in Meat Cove, Nova Scotia. She moved to Ottawa at a young age, and has been unable to leave ever since. Apart from being an avid reader, writer, and jazz musician, she is also a huge B-movie film buff. She has been published in various underground magazines, including Hai/Kool.

Jeffrey Ross' work has been published in more than 20 different journals including, most recently, getgorrilla, Pindelyboz, B&A New Fiction, and the Algonquin Roundtable Review, and has been translated into French and Spanish. He is an associate editor of Pindeldyboz, a New York based, award winning journal of fiction. Currently he teaches scriptwriting and Psychology at Algonquin College in Ottawa. For three years he was the coordinator of the Subterranean reading series which ended when he ran out of time and energy.

Paul A. Toth lives in Michigan. His first novel, Fizz, and its successor, Fishnet, are available now. His fiction has been published by Barcelona Review, Mississippi Review Online and Night Train, and was nominated for the Pushcart Prize and Best American Mystery Stories. For more information, please see www.netpt.tv.